JORDAN VINEYARD & WINERY

When the founders of Jordan Winery finally decided to have their own, they wanted it as sort of an homage, a harken back to traditional culinary and hospitality locales like France. Tom and Sally Jordan settled on a 275-acre plot in Alexander valley in 1972 with culinary adventure in mind. They designed their Winery with the entire experience in mind food wine farming all in one place. The fact that Jordan Winery is an icon for Sonoma proves the fact that people want the experience, and that every winery, distillery and brewery is a hospitality company first, and a producer second.

Having chefs of the highest caliber since 1976 like Henri Charvet, to the current chef Todd Knoll the culinary tradition at Jordan is unyielding. Guest chefs such as Wolfgang Puck and Paul Bocuse have graced the menu at Jordan as well. Enjoy “Quick” Beef and Chicken Pho, Sonoma Coast Albacore Poke paired with an aged Chardonnay or a modernist take in the custard of Sonoma Foie Gras.

The goals of Jordan have not changed since day one providing exceptional hospitality and one of the few wineries to offer a complete estate experience from olive oil, hors d’oeuvres, to a full tasting menu prepared with Sonoma Cabernet parings. The award-winning wines, gastronomic delights and a true sense of place make Jordan our choice for the first taste spotlight.

The vast variety of culinary delights in this foodie, retreat make Jordan the top choice for our first taste spotlight.
